

DIXON EVENING TELEGRAPH.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY BY ACT OF THE CITY COUNCIL

Telegraph Sixty-First Year

DIXON, ILLINOIS WEDNESDAY AUGUST 7 1912.

Dixon Daily Telegraph Twenty-Ninth Year No. 185

THIRD PARTY NAMES ROOSEVELT FOR PRESIDENT

Progressives Convention Again In Tumult as Ex-President Is Nominated for High Office.

PERKINS IS NAMED

New York Delegation Elects Financier as Member of National Body in Place of Straus.

NEGRO QUESTION ANSWERED

Expected Contest on Floor Regarding the Darkey Delegates Did Not Materialize—Chairman Knox of the Credentials Committee Presented a Report Barring the Negroes and It Was Adopted Unanimously.

BULLETIN.
TODAY IN THE CONVENTION.
Convention Hall, Chicago, Aug. 7.—Special to Telegraph—After the delegation had sung Onward Christian Soldiers, the third day of the Progressive convention was called to order this morning by Chairman Beveridge.

Medill McCormick, rising to report for the committee on rules, was given an ovation.

The name "Progressive Party" was adopted. The rules were adopted.

A motion was made to amend the name to National Progressive Party, or Progressive Party, to conform to the conflicting conditions in various states.

The rules committee reports a change of the name to Progressive Party, provided that in other states where other names have been adopted the latter shall be recognized.

The executive committee was authorized to add four women as members at large of the national committee.

On the motion of Henry Allen of Kansas the rules are suspended and the nominating speeches are called for.

The Kansas move was seconded by Pennsylvania and Minnesota, though Tim Woodruff opposed.

Pendergast Nominates Roosevelt.
W. A. Pendergast of New York arose at 2 o'clock and started delivering the speech putting the name of Theodore Roosevelt in nomination for the presidency of the United States.

The bare mention of the Colonel's name brought the entire convention to its feet with a tremendous shout.

Quiet was restored after 40 minutes of wild cheering, and the first flag with 48 stars in the new arrangement never unfurled was dropped over the rafters at 3 o'clock.

Judge Ben Lindsey of Colorado seconded the nomination of Roosevelt.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—The third day's session of the national Progressive convention was called to order this morning at 10 o'clock by Chairman Albert J. Beveridge.

After an invocation by Rabbi Gerson B. Levi of Temple Israel the convention plunged into the details of perfecting the permanent organization.

Following this came the nomination of Col. Theodore Roosevelt for president. The naming of Roosevelt for the nomination brought another long and continuous outburst of cheering. There were many seconding speeches.

Beveridge Opens Convention.
Temporary Chairman Beveridge arrived a little after noon at the second day's session of the convention. He took his place on the platform. The delegates gave him an ovation.

One of the blanks in the list of the national committeemen was filled when the New York delegation met and elected George W. Perkins for the place. The name of Oscar Straus was put in nomination by Amos Pinchot. Straus withdrew, saying that it required a younger and more active man for such work. Perkins was elected unanimously.

While the convention still waited for Roosevelt the crowd sang "Dixie." While they were singing Roosevelt arrived.

JOSEPH HENRY JR. DROWNS IN WEST

DIXON YOUTH MET A TRAGIC DEATH YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

VERY TALENTED YOUNG MAN

Family Moved Here Recently From West Brooklyn—Born in Bradford Township and Became Member of Faculty of Western College—Funeral Here.

Joseph E. Henry Jr., the 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Henry, 704 Nachusa avenue, was drowned at 2:30 p. m. yesterday at Lacey, Washington, where the young man has been teaching at St. Martin's College. The news of the young man's tragic death was received by the father at 10 o'clock this morning. The telegram, which gave no further particulars, being from Rt. Rev. Justin Welz, rector and president of the college. The bereaved father has wired the college authorities, asking that the remains of the unfortunate young man be sent to Dixon, where the funeral will be held.

A Talented Young Man.
The victim of the tragic accident was an extraordinary young man, having completed a remarkable educational course, which won for him the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Philosophy and Master of Arts, and the chair of piano and English at St. Martin's.

He was born in Bradford township, Nov. 26, 1889. At the age of 14, to study for the priesthood, he entered St. Francis' Academy at St. Francis, Wis., where he completed a two year course in one year. He returned the following fall to resume his third year's course, but because of catarrh was compelled to stop his studies there, and he went to St. Bede's College, near Peru, Ill., where he completed his fifth year classical course.

From St. Bede's he went to St. John's University at Collegeville, Minn., where he took up his philosophical studies. At the completion of his first year's study the degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred upon him, and his second year's studies at this institution were rewarded by the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy.

After completing his work at St. John's he returned to the home of his parents, where he won the acquaintance and friendship of Bishop Muldoon of the Rockford diocese, who influenced him to go to St. Mary's college at Baltimore, where he took up his theological studies. The sea air, however, was detrimental to his catarrh and he was compelled to give up his studies, going to St. Martin's College last fall as a member of the faculty.

At the time of his tragic death the young man was considering an invitation to return to St. John's University as a member of the faculty, but was delayed from such action until he was sure of his recovery from his malady.

He is survived by his parents, three sisters and one brother; Mrs. G. L. Jeanguenat of West Brooklyn; Mrs. Joseph Weiser of Ashton; Miss Edna Henry of West Brooklyn and Laurent F. Henry of Ashton.

LEE CENTER COMES TO PLAY TOMORROW

ASSEMBLY TEAM WILL PLAY VISITORS AT PARK IN THE AFTERNOON.

Lee Center is coming tomorrow to play the fast team representing the Assembly, upon the Assembly diamond.

Captain Moore of the locals may make a few shifts in his lineup, but it will remain substantially as published last evening.

The game will be played after the afternoon program and every one who wishes to attend may do so and not miss any of the good things the Assembly has provided for his amusement and instruction.

Lee Center will bring a strong team and the chances are that both sides will put up a good article of ball.

ELK BARBEQUE DAY WILL SOON BE HERE

DEMAND FOR TICKETS TO BIG FESTIVAL IS GREAT

HAVE A TANTALIZING MENU

No One Will Be Hungry on Watson Island Labor Day—Good Vaudeville Will Entertain the Crowds—Many Lodges Will Send Delegations to Dixon.

Plans for the New England Barbecue and Chicken Fry to be given on the Watson Island, Labor Day, by the Dixon lodge, B. P. O. E. are rapidly nearing completion, and they insure something doing every minute during the day. The sale of tickets, which will be conducted solely by the Elks, making it necessary for those who desire to attend this affair to purchase tickets from a member of the lodge, commenced Monday and Chairman Charles Miller of the committee in charge reports that the demand for tickets is such as to insure the absolute success of the affair.

Many Out of Town Visitors.
There is no doubt there will be hundreds of out of town visitors here. Mr. Miller has already received responses to the announcements sent to Freeport, Rockford, Aurora, DeKalb, Rochelle, Sterling and Mendota, and each of these lodges has promised to send large representations, the happy clamor of a year ago, being a wonderful advertisement for the coming event.

Arrangements for the transportation facilities are practically completed and will be announced within a few days.

Vaudeville and Music.
Plans for the day insure something doing continuously from 9 o'clock in the morning until the last boat load of pleasure seekers has started home. The Marquette orchestra will furnish music during the entire day, there will be high class vaudeville acts and a wrestling match also, the performers in which will be announced later.

The Menu.
The menu cards promise some good "eats" the chef in charge having promised the following good things:

Clam Chowder Steamed Clams
Roast Pig Roast Steer, Rock River
Cat Fish Fried Spring Chicken
Roast Sweet Potatoes, Roast Irish
Potatoes
Boiled Ham
Sweet Corn on Ear, Cabbage Salad
Cheese, Pickles, Olives, Onions

WILSON IS NOTIFIED

Democratic Standard Bearer Told of Nomination.

Chairman Ollie James of the Committee Spoke for That Body—Governor Makes Notable Response.

Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 7.—Governor Wilson was notified here this afternoon of his nomination as Democratic candidate for president of the United States.

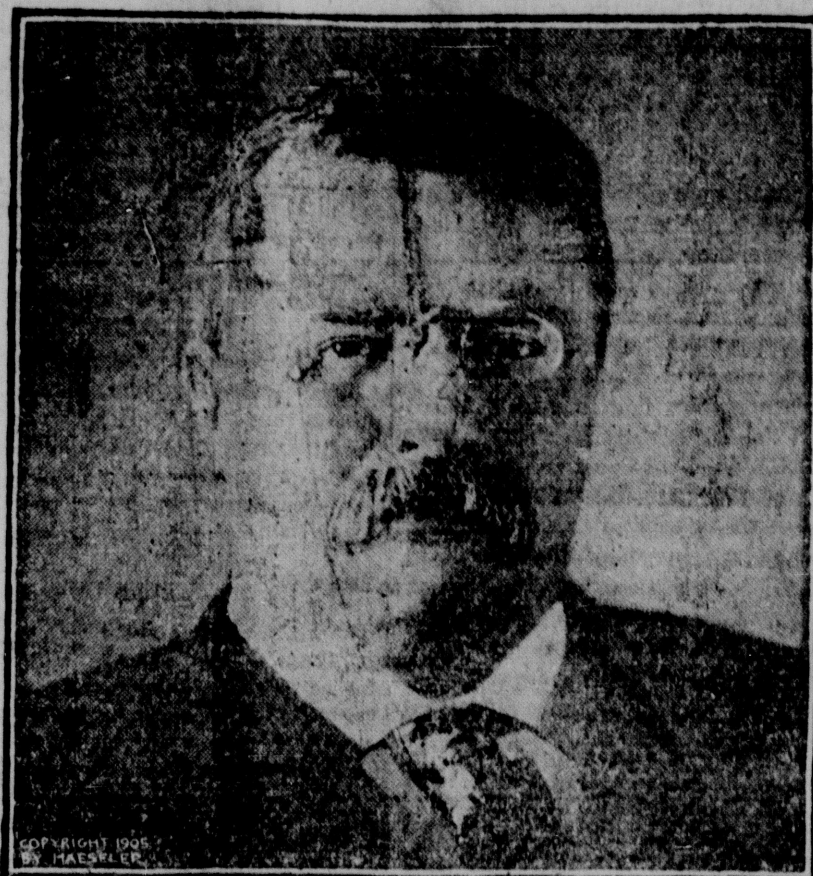

Headed by Senator-elect Ollie James of Kentucky, as chairman, members of the notification committee arrived at Sea Girt at one o'clock this afternoon from New York and proceeded at once to the home of Governor Wilson.

The members of the committee, Speaker Clark, Representative Oscar W. Underwood, Governor and Mrs. Marshall were entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Wilson.

At three o'clock Representative James delivered the notification address from the front porch of the little White House and Governor Wilson followed with his speech of acceptance, which he read. In a space roped off on the lawn, there were a host of visitors, including the governors of many states and other noted men of the Democratic party.

GOOD NEWS FROM SICK BED.

Deputy Sheriff R. R. Phillips this morning received word from the bedside of his daughter, Mary, who is at the Compton hospital, to the effect that she is practically out of danger now, barring untoward developments.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

WILL LOAD UP FOR GIANTS ON MONDAY

MANAGER OF DIXON BROWNS PLANS TO HAVE STRONG LINEUP IN FIELD.

Manager Vaile of the Browns is making arrangements to put one of the strongest teams that has represented Dixon this season on the field Monday afternoon when the Leland Giants of Chicago will appear here.

An effort will probably be made to secure Fred Nohe, the Peru Star's pitcher, to twirl the game. Nohe beat the Giants at Peru Monday, score 2 to 0. In case Nohe, who formerly pitched for the Kewanee Central association team can not come here, the selection for box artists will be between Ackert, Huber and Lightner. Joe Keenan or Malach will catch the game.

WEST BROOKLYN MAN SUFFERS STROKE

West Brooklyn, Aug. 7.—Special to Telegraph—John Oester Sr., who suffered a stroke of paralysis on Monday, does not improve noticeably.

Mr. Oester is completely paralyzed on the right side. His friends are greatly worried over his condition.

BOOKS AT THE LIBRARY.

Miss Wynn, librarian at the Public Library, will place on the shelves of the library for circulation Saturday, the following books:

STERLING VOTES FOR HOSPITAL

Sterling, Aug. 7.—Special—The voters of this city yesterday cast their ballots in favor of the erection of a city hospital. The vote was 481 for and 224 against.

COMPANY ADDS MUCH GAS PIPE

NEW CONCERN HAS LAID ABOUT THREE MILES OF EXTENSION SINCE COMING IN.

LIGHT INSTALLING IS DELAYED

Linemen Find It Necessary to Stop to Trim Trees—Company Connects Parallel Gas Lines, Thereby Getting Equal Pressure.

The Illinois Northern Utilities company, since assuming the ownership of the Lee County Lighting company, has demonstrated its intention of enlarging the system to the fullest extent, for in the gas department alone an exceptionally large number of new consumers have been added.

The addition of these consumers, most of whom reside in the outskirts of the city, has entailed a considerable extension of the gas mains in the city, nearly three miles of additional pipe having been laid since the new company assumed control. In addition to these extensions the company has done a great deal of "tying in," which will improve the service. "Tying in" simply means the connecting of parallel mains, thereby causing equal pressure in all parts of the city.

New Street Lights.

Answering some complaints that have been made concerning the delay in installing the new street lighting system, the company officials show that in no way is the delay their fault. In almost every part of the city it has been found necessary to trim shade trees to allow the stretching of the new wires, and despite the efforts of the city officials to have property owners do this work, the company has found it necessary to take its own wire and pole work to remove the obstructive branches.

DIXON LOSES THE STATE HOSPITAL

$1,500,000 INSTITUTION FOR THE INSANE HAS BEEN LOCATED AT ALTON, ILL.

In the words of the small boy, Dixon has been left "in the soup."

Months ago we were all nearly blinded by rosy dreams of having that million and a half dollar state hospital for the insane for which appropriation was made at Springfield, built near Dixon. And we really had a good excuse for so thinking, for no more advantageous place could be found than those excellently suited ones offered by the Dixon business men who worked hard and spent a considerable quantity of their time and money in locating some suitable grounds and securing options on them.

It develops, however, that their work was in vain, for the hospital is to be built near Alton, Ill., in Madison county.

The state board of administration decided the matter yesterday after taking eight ballots on it. Seventy-eight cities bid for the institution. The tract secured at Alton contains 1276 acres.

ASHTON MAN OUT FOR CORONER

Ashton, Aug. 7.—Special to Telegraph—The first candidate to announce himself for county office on the national Progressive ticket in this section is Geo. B. Stephan of this city. Mr. Stephan has announced himself as a candidate for coroner on the Progressive ticket. He is a wide-awake hustling business man of Ashton, doing a large furniture business and being an efficient undertaker and embalmer.

TO ATTEND SOLDIERS REUNION.

State Commander Galt of the Illinois G. A. R. will attend the soldiers reunion at the Assembly next Tuesday. Commander Galt will make a brief address.

Illinois: Local showers today and probably tomorrow; light to moderate south winds.
Sunrise, 4:49; sunset, 7:02; moonrise, 11:36.

GERMAIN THE WIZARD AT ASSEMBLY TONIGHT

VISITORS AT CHAUTAUQUA WILL ENJOY ESPECIALLY FINE ENTERTAINMENT

CHAPIN WAS DELAYED BY WRECK

Lincoln Man Was in Smashup and Debate Was Substituted for His Time—He Appeared Later in the Afternoon.

On account of a wreck near Chicago this morning it was necessary to change the program of the afternoon. Benjamin Chapin, the "Like Lincoln Man," was a victim of the wreck and he telegraphed Secretary N. H. Long at noon that he could not reach Dixon until 4 o'clock.

In place of the entertainment by Chapin, the debate between Elwood T. Bailey and John H. Byers was pulled off, at 2:30. The debaters were greeted by a large audience and it was said to be one of the most interesting features of this year's program. The victor of the contest was not announced until too late for today's issue of the paper, but will be given in full tomorrow.

Bailey debated the affirmative of the question "Should Women Vote?" for forty minutes, when he gave way to Byers, who had forty minutes on the negative. Then Bailey came back with a ten minute rebuttal. Six judges, whose names will be given tomorrow, decided the result. Three of the judges were ladies and three gentlemen.

Mission Study Class.

The talk of Miss Van Gundy before the Mission Study class grows more interesting daily and the attendance is also increasing. Bible hall was filled this forenoon when this prominent mission worker arose to speak. She is interesting because she has something to say about China, aside from the plain facts regarding missions.

"Physical betterment is an essential in the regeneration of China," declared the speaker. We must send missionaries to that country. The great drawback in China is too many children. The little ones of that land, to a great extent, are neglected. The reason for so many children in that country is that they want to worship their ancestors. The evils of China are given little concern. There are so many children there that the question of support has become a serious question.

Miss Van Gundy related many interesting stories about the customs of the Chinese.

Thursday she will discuss "A Model Mission Class," and during the discussion each member of the class will be requested to participate in the discussion. Miss Van Gundy has some good ideas about what a model mission study class should be. She declared this morning that tomorrow's session will be the most interesting of the week and hoped that the hall would again be well filled.

Karl Germain, the wizard, will be at the Assembly this evening and all lovers of the mystic will find a treat. Germain has returned from a trip through the United Kingdom, where he was received with the greatest honors.

He has been a deep student of the occult since boyhood and spent all his life exploring the realms of mystery which remain to most mortals only the subject for vague speculation.

Germain will be accompanied by a piano soloist as well as an assistant in charge of his elegant and elaborate settings.

Neil Tomorrow.

C. Edmund Neil, the monologist, tomorrow afternoon with his "Man From Home" should be a good drawing card. His productions are present with humor, pathos and dramatic strength that captivates the most critical audience.

In the evening Montraville M. Wood, the inventor, will be of special interest to those of a mechanical turn of mind. He will lecture on "The Wonders of the Monorail Car and the Wrestling Gyroscopic."

Wingert at Round Table.

Attorney E. E. Wingert will speak on the "Value of Literature" at the Round Table tomorrow afternoon.

Social Happenings

AUGUST 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.

Are capable of attaining to anything, but should be very careful. Curiosity is marked. Fond of singing. Buoyant and elastic in spirits full of fun and jollity. Strong leaning toward the occult and mysterious. Are passionate, but poetically and refinedly so, and anything debasing or low will quickly awaken your disgust. Devoted, loving, full of fun.

August 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12.

Have a discriminating mind, and are a keen, subtle, powerful reasoner, but more through intuition than intellect. In religious matters and tendencies a John rather than a Peter. Can be secretive and conceal your thoughts. Only way to make you show your hand is to arouse your temper and thus throw you off your guard. Are courageous to the extreme.

Honeymoon in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bentley, who were married Monday evening, left yesterday for Chicago to spend a few days before going to housekeeping in Polo.—Sterling Gazette.

Surprised Mrs. Watts.

Mrs. J. W. Watts was the victim of a most delightful surprise Monday afternoon when about 45 of her friends gathered at the new Watts cottage on the Assembly grounds and helped her celebrate the anniversary of her birthday. The crowd was practically the same which was present at the dedication of the beautiful cottage. A sign with the name of the cottage, "Mary Alice," which had been chosen in honor of the hostess some time ago, was presented to her, it being beautifully done by Mr. Patrick. Among the other gifts were a handsome cameo breast pin, presented by Judge Watts, and a cut glass dish, given by Mrs. Bunnell and grandsons, Elwin and Willard Bunnell. A delicious scramble supper was served and the "bunch" spent a very happy day together.

Entertained at Tea.

Miss Bosworth entertained the following ladies at tea last evening: Mrs. A. C. Warner, Mrs. Louise P. Steel, Miss Anna Geisenheimer, Miss Pratt, Mrs. McKenney of Savanna and Mrs. Rising of Chicago. These ladies were members of the party who toured Europe last year.

Bentley-Martin.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Martin and Clarence M. Bentley occurred Monday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride in Prairieville.

It was a very pretty home wedding with only a few of the intimate friends and relatives being present.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Henry Martin of Prairieville and is a very charming young lady. She has many friends in Sterling, Dixon and Palmyra who wish her a happy married life.

The groom is a prosperous young barber of Polo and is well liked there, where he has his own shop.

After a short honeymoon, they will start housekeeping in Polo.

After the ceremony had been performed the young couple were chartered by a large party of the bride's friends, led by Miss Minerva Lenox. After some time the bride and groom appeared on the porch and passed around the cigars and candy. They were showered with congratulations by their friends.—Sterling Standard.

BURNED AND ITCHED BADLY

Burn Was Sore and Ulcerated. All Red and Inflamed. Suffered Terribly. Could Not Sleep for Two Weeks. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Arm Healed Nicely.

539 Lincoln Park Blvd., Chicago, Ill.—"A year ago I received a very severe burn on my left arm. I caught cold in it and it was all sore and ulcerated. The sore was as large as a silver dollar. It was all red and inflamed and had pus running out of it. I suffered terribly from burning pain; could not sleep for two weeks. It burned and itched so badly. I applied Salve.—Salve and a salve my druggist recommended as his own, but got no relief. I then commenced using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed the burned parts with Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment on a linen bandage. I got relief from the first and my arm healed nicely. I was soon able to be at work again. Had I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment at first I would have avoided lots of suffering." (Signed) Harry Junko, Mar. 9, 1912. If you wish a skin clear of pimples, blackheads and other annoying eruptions, hands soft and white, hair lustrous and glossy, and scalp free from dandruff and itching, begin to-day the regular use of Cuticura Soap for the toilet, bath and shampoo, assisted by an occasional light application of Cuticura Ointment. Sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

FOR THE MIDDLE-AGED WOMAN

Designs in Scarfs Are an Important Part of the General Scheme of Costuming.

Flat, narrow scarfs for stout or short women are so long that they make defined stripes running from her shoulders to her feet. These scarfs are smart-looking in black chiffon or grenadine banded at intervals with perpendicularly placed two-inch wide ribbons of velvet or satin in black or white.

Sometimes filet or Irish lace bands are employed in lieu of the ribbon, but at the ends of the scarf there should not be any trimmings other than a tassel in self color, as a fringe or any sort of banding makes a distinct break which takes from the height.

Little scarfs of soft black silk are of light-weight serge or heavy linen, the principal trimmings of the fronts that are so extensively worn by the smart dressers among middle-aged women. These little scarfs issue from under a turn-over, wide collar, with rounding corners and trimmings of black and white silk, put on as a banding border, or of hemstitched white chiffon. Either treatment has a subduing effect.

Another smart little necktie suited to the middle-aged woman is the four-in-hand in black silk with a light-hued border upon it, which gives it a little snap without rendering its wearer absurd.

The Beauty of KRYPTOK LENSES

Why Look Older Than You Are?

DOUBLE-vision glasses need not make one look older, or cause embarrassment by being conspicuous. Kryptok Lenses comprise near view and far view lenses in an integral piece of glass. They have an absolutely smooth surface, and are entirely free from the seams, dirt-catching lines, cement and bulky appearance characteristic of old style pasted double-vision lenses.

Kryptok Lenses are good looking. They have the great advantage of perfect vision for both distance and reading, coupled with the neat appearance of single-vision glasses. In no way do they suggest advancing years.

Over 200,000 people are now wearing Kryptok Lenses

IF YOU HAVE NEVER SEEN those wonderful far and near glasses and are wearing two pair of glasses or the old fashioned pasted bifocal ones, you will be under no obligation if you call and let me explain these wonderful lenses. You will wonder how you ever got along without them. Seeing is believing. Won't you let me show you?

DEMENTTOWN

Alton gets the big insane asylum. Of course Dixon is sorry to lose it, but cheer up. Think what effect it might have had on some of the near bugs around here.

A man in Amboy got stewed. He was arrested. He tried to climb up to a window in his cell and escape. He fell and broke his leg. His wife sued the saloon men who sold him booze. One might almost get a short story out of that combination.

And as P. O. Sullivan said about the central figure at a recent funeral, "The poor fellow was an infidel all his life." It is suspected that P. O. meant invalid.

Which reminds us that P. O. appeared on the ave. at 7:45 this a. m. on his way to work. He was greatly surprised when he was informed that his belief that it was not yet 7 was erroneous.

Following which he loosened up and told us something that happened to him last winter. One cold night when there was about "three feet" of snow on the ground P. O. invited some friends to go down town and see a picture show. After the show he took an inventory and found he had just 6 jineys—30 coppers—in his jeans. Intent on being a real host, he invited his five friends into Justus Schweinsberg to partake of a glass of white port before starting home. P. O. thought sure it would be six for a quarter. Mr. Schweinsberg thought P. O. had more money. Consequently he picked off the entire 30 cents. Result: P. O. had to walk home in the deep snow.

TOUCHED TENDER SPOT

APPEAL IN HEN'S EYES TOO MUCH FOR "NIMROD."

Consequently Destructive Bird, Held In Honor as a Gift, Continues to Make Barren Waste of Doctor's Garden.

One of the doctor's patients is an Italian who speaks English imperfectly, and is, besides, very poor. The doctor became interested in him at a hospital clinic, where he treated him for some time. When quite restored to health, the Italian, full of gratitude and affection, desired to make some return for the kindness that had been shown him, and after much consideration decided to present his benefactor with one of his most valuable assets, a large white hen which he was fattening with a view to a feast for himself and family later on. So one morning he arrived at the doctor's office with this offering in his arms and sat humbly waiting his turn among the other patients.

"Well, Joseph, is your hen sick?" asked the doctor jocosely, when Joseph finally was shown into the private sanatorium.

"Seek-a!" exclaimed Joseph. "No, ser, heema no seek-a. I brought-a heem to you. I want geva heem to you. You make-a me well. You treat-a me kind. I geva you cheek. I have-a no more. I like-a you, please take-a," and with tears of emotion in his eyes he thrust the struggling, squawking fowl into the hands of the physician, who, being a most tender-hearted mortal, could not refuse a gift he knew was offered in a spirit of sincere devotion.

A few days later the doctor's brother, whose prowess as a hunter of big and little game had won for him among his friends the nickname of "Nimrod," was visiting the doctor, and, happening to look out of the sanctum window into the yard, observed the hen contentedly scratching up a bed of geraniums, the last bit of vegetation her active claws had left untouched in the inclosure.

"Hello, Doc! Since when have you gone into the poultry business?" said he.

Then the doctor explained. "The deuce of it is," he concluded ruefully, "that the activities of that miserable bird have kept my yard looking like a barren waste."

"Kill her, why don't you?" said Nimrod. "Cut off her head."

"Oh," said the man of lancets and probes and surgical knives, "I couldn't do it; not in cold blood. Nimrod—not in cold blood."

"Pooh," returned Nimrod, "let me do it for you then. Just a clip on the side of the head and it's over."

"All right, my boy, go and do it," said the brother. So the doctor closed the window and drew down the shades and Nimrod departed on his murderous errand. Twenty minutes later he returned.

"Well?" queried the doctor, looking up from his writing, "is it done?"

"No," replied Nimrod. "Not done!" said the doctor. "And why not?"

"Why, the darned bird looked at me with its round, silly eyes and I couldn't do it," confessed Nimrod, with a deprecating smile.

So Joseph's gift still clucks and scratches contentedly and the doctor's yard continues to look like a barren waste.—New York Press.

Bird Store a Magnet.

The bird store window is an unfailing attraction to many people. Perhaps it attracts men more than women, but it is a magnet that draws all children.

Let the small boys discover a bird store and they halt and linger long, wondering over or admiring the strange or beautiful feathered creatures within, and children walking with their mothers, if they should spy this window, are sure to tug her toward it to give them a chance to look in.

The bird store window interests all children, as it appears to interest also many grown men who may be drawn to it by a natural fondness for birds and animals, or be attracted by the novel or striking character of the exhibit on view.

Here, for instance, in this window is a white peacock, a remarkable bird seen with its plumage in whatever form. As with characteristic deliberation it walks about with its long tail feathers folded and trailing people stop to look at it, and then let it raise and spread its great white fan and many more halt and gather in a crowd around the window.—New York Sun.

TAFT ASKS CANAL ACTION

Special Message Urges Congress to Fix Maximum Tolls.

Washington, Aug. 7.—President Taft, in a special message to congress, urged immediate enactment of legislation to provide an operating force for the Panama canal, the government of the canal zone and the fixing of maximum tolls. The president indicated that the question of free passage to American ships might be determined later.

The OLD STORIES

We sing old songs—their melody Calls up the olden days, And puts us pictures of the past On which we fondly gaze. We sing the old songs—their cadence gives A softer light on life— But when old stories strike our ears We straightway rise in strife.

We hail old friends—we clasp their hands, And vow they cheer our sight; We greet them with true happiness And comradeship we plight. We hail old friends—we swear the tie Is one that never ends, But good old stories we'll not hear— Not even from our friends.

We praise old wine—their bubbles smile As though to echo back The smiles it coaxes to our lips; We talk of "good old sack"; We praise old wines—their mellow warmth Goes tingling through and through; But those old stories—when they start We call for something new.

We sing old songs—we hail old friends; We praise old wine; why, then, Let's call the good old stories up, And tell them all again. The old tales are the friends of youth— They hold the song and wine, Old friends, old wine, old songs, old tales— Of memory divine!

Same Man.

The Fourth of July orator is approaching his peroration:

"Our country," he exclaims, "is the proudest land upon which the orb of day smiles in its pilgrimage. Our nation is the grandest that ever sprung from the mind of man and was thrilled with the pulsebeats of the hearts of the patriots. Never before in the history of the world has there been a realm so thoroughly exemplifying the highest ideals of government. Never before has there been a land whose rulers have given it the richest, rarest impulses of their very souls. Never before in all time has there been a country so supremely blessed in its statesmen—men who have undoubtedly been inspired—men who have sacrificed all personal ambition for the good of the people—men who have."

"Who is the wonderful orator?" we ask. "That is the Honorable Sizzlan Howie, who got up at the convention last week and said the government was a failure, that our country was tottering on the brink of destruction, and that we hadn't had an honest official in seventy years."

Explaining the Map.

"Well," said the first bicyclist, "we ought to be right in the middle of Bilgville, according to the map, yet as you may see for yourself, we are on a mud road some miles from anywhere."

"I can't understand it," said the second bicyclist, "unless the map was made by some of those naval experts."

The Carnegie System.

"Don't go in there, Pete," said Musty Milton. "Dat's not a good back door to strike."

"Why?" inquired Perambulating Pete.

"Dat's where Andy Carnegie lives, an' he'll make you tote a library out o' town wit' you."

Couldn't Fool Him.

"You are the apple of my eye," declared the Fortune Hunter to the Wise Heiress.

"I think," mused the Wise Heiress, "that I will keep my eye peeled, nevertheless."

Naturally, this evidence of astuteness on her part thrilled him to the core.

Didn't Seem Right.

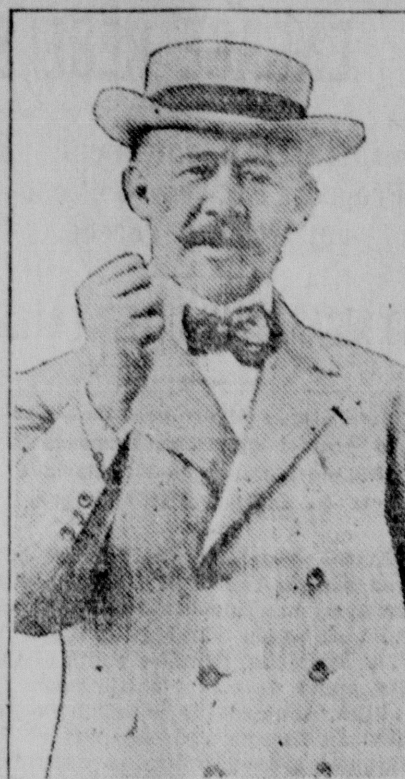

"The title you have chosen for your story does not seem exactly correct," said the Astute Publisher.

"I don't see why," replied the Ambitious Author.

"But don't you think 'The Knights of Other Days' is rather ambiguous?"

SAVINGS BANK IS CLOSED

Poor Silk Weavers in Consternation Over Possible Losses.

Danielson, Conn., Aug. 7.—When the silk mills closed here consternation prevailed among the hundreds of poor silk weavers upon learning that the Windham County Savings bank, with 2,000 depositors, had been closed by the state bank commissioners. John A. Paine is president and C. C. Young is secretary of the institution. The ledgers at present show deposits of $850,000.

New York, Aug. 7.—Theodore P. Shonts has resigned the presidency of the Toledo, St. Louis & Western railroad in order to devote all of his time to the New York traction problem.

TELLS NAMES OF BECKER'S VICTIMS

"Bald Jack" Rose Gives District Attorney Whitman a Detailed Statement.

ALWAYS COLLECTED IN CASH

Self-Accused Collector of Police Graft Says Man Charged With Rosenthal Murder Got $12,000 to $15,000 a Month From Resorts.

New York, Aug. 7.—"Bald Jack" Rose, the gambler upon whose testimony was chiefly based the indictment of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker on the charge of investigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, furnished District Attorney Whitman with a written statement disclosing in detail the history of his relations with Becker as one of the police officer's alleged graft collectors.

Rose, in his confession, as the district attorney terms it, reiterates his previous allegation that Becker was one of four high police officers who collected between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 yearly from illegal resorts, and gives a complete table of his collections from gamblers, which, he says, he turned over to Becker.

Names Ten Contributors. These connections, according to the "confession," averaged from $12,000 to $15,000 a month and came from a dozen or more gambling houses. The names of about ten of them Rose gave to the district attorney.

Becker, the self-accused gambler wrote, was continually hounding him for more money, telling him, he said, that "the bunch down town isn't getting enough."

Rose's statement was several thousand words long. The gambler had been working on it in his cell ever since, on the promise of leniency, District Attorney Whitman got him a week ago to make his first confession.

Rose declared that he had always turned his collections over to Becker in cash, frequently at Rose's home, and that his wife and servants had seen the money pass and could testify to the truth of his statement.

Becker's method of bringing unruly gamblers to terms was to raid them first, Rose said. This was the police officer's way, he explained, of "getting acquainted."

New Evidence Against Police.

Evidence showing the existence of graft in the police department, it was learned here, will be presented to the grand jury by the Burns detectives in the form of verbatim records of officers of the law demanding tribute from two pseudo disorderly houses opened and operated in the Tenderloin district by the Burns detective agency.

Three police officials and one civilian, a lawyer, have been trapped by this ruse.

CORNWELL KILLS HIMSELF

Philadelphia Lawyer and Clubman Blows His Brains Out.

Philadelphia, Aug. 7.—To escape the shame of passing as a prisoner, accused of defaulting with thousands from the estates entrusted to his care, through crowds of townspeople whom he knew awaited his coming, Col. Gibbons Gray Cornwell of Westchester, Pa., commander of the Sixth regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, and prominent as a lawyer and clubman, shot himself through the head and died instantly in a Pennsylvania railroad train in this city.

ONE GOVERNOR FOR CANAL

Senate Accedes to House Proposal for One-Man Government.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The future of the Panama canal will rest in the hands of a "one-man government" through the decision of the senate to support a plan already endorsed by the house of representatives. By a vote of 43 to 14 it adopted a provision giving the president control of all affairs at Panama, with power to appoint a governor to complete, govern and operate the canal and canal zone.

PROGRESSIVES WIN KANSAS

Roosevelt Presidential Electors and Gov. Stubbs to Be Successful.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 7.—The early primary returns here indicate that the Progressive Republican ticket has swept the state by twenty to twenty-five thousand majority. This includes the Roosevelt presidential electors and nomination of Governor Stubbs for United States senator over Curtis, his reactionary Republican opponent and the entire Progressive Republican slate for state offices.

BattleShip Caucus a Failure.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The house battleship caucus plan failed for lack of a quorum. Only 87 of the 227 Democratic members of the house answered the roll call.

"Parson" Davies Seriously Ill.

New York, Aug. 7.—Charles E. (Parson) Davies, noted sporting man and boxing promoter of Chicago, is seriously ill in this city and "broke."

ADVANTAGE OF RUGS

EASY TO SEE THEIR SUPERIORITY OVER CARPETS.

Excellent Floor Coverings May Be Purchased at Moderate Prices—Linoleum for the Kitchen and Bathroom Is Important.

It ought not to be necessary to point out wherein rugs have the advantage over carpets. Tacked down floor coverings are no longer countenanced by thoughtful people.

"But," somebody may object, "the cost of replacing carpets by rugs is too expensive an item to consider." Perhaps so, if attempted all at once, but if brought about gradually it will not seem a heavy burden. There are substitutes for the more costly rugs for sale at moderate prices.

The washable cotton rugs for use in the bathrooms or even bedrooms will appeal to the woman of modest means. While combining practicability and cheapness, they are attractive at the same time.

The so-called "grass" coverings should not be overlooked in this matter of desirable floor furnishings. Nearly all the department stores carry them, and the larger firms have a mail order department always at the ready service of the out-of-town customer.

Again, handsome and durable rugs may be made of odds and ends of old carpets. This work can be placed in the hands of certain manufacturers who make a specialty of it, or the weaving can be done at home.

OLD NORTH DAKOTA.

Take me back to North Dakota,
Where there is plenty of room and air.
Where there is flax and elevators.
Self binders and prickly pear.
Where there ain't no pomp nor gilt-
ter,
Where a shillin's called a "bit."
Where at night the magpies twitter,
Where the Injun fights were fit.

Take me back where land is plenty,
Where there is corn and hay in ricks,
Where a stack of "whites" costs
twenty,
Where they don't sell gilded bricks
Where the old Missouri river
And the winding, clear Shoyenne
Makes green patches in the Bad Lands,
Where the Sioux and Blackfeet ran.

Take me where there ain't no sul-lows,
Nor no forty-story shacks,
Where they shy at automobiles,
Dudes, plug hats and three-rail
tracks,
Where the honest sun-burned farmer Dreams of wealth and plows the dirt,
Where the sleepy night herd "puncher"

Sings to steers and plies his quirt.
Take me where there's diamond
hitches,
Ropes and brands and cartridge
belts,
Where the boys wear "chappes" for britches,
Soft boiled shirts and Stetson felts
Land of lignite coal and hustle,
Land of waving grain of gold,
Take me back to North Dakota,
Let me die there when I'm old.

LOUD HORNS NECESSARY.

The commissioners of Dixon are planning an ordinance that will have to do with the regulating of automobiles. The idea is a very commendable one and it is hoped the proposition will go through, which it no doubt will.

It has been stated, however, that the ordinance will contain a passage prohibiting the sound of "loud or screeching" horns. Is it a good idea to prohibit the use of a loud horn?
It would seem to us not. The louder and harsher the sound of a horn, the quicker and more effectively will it serve the use for which it is intended, which is surely to warn the person, or animal, that stops in front of the oncoming machine. A low, melodious note, one that is pleasing to the ear, perhaps, will never warn a person in the path of an auto as quickly as a sharp, harsh note.
Horns are not put on automobiles for concert purposes. They are required by state law for the safety of persons in the streets, and when the driver finds someone in a position of danger in front of him, he should be allowed to make all the noise he can in order to get them out of the path of destruction.

If a locomotive passes a crossing without a shriek from its whistle, which can be no weak-junged affair,
the company is liable by law. Auto drivers should be compelled to give good loud warnings whenever they find their machine is a menace to the safety of any person.

It would be well enough to make it unlawful for anyone to toot a horn unnecessarily and at late hours of the night merely for the purpose of showing off and making noise, as some youthful and lightheaded drivers do, but this would be even better to permit this than to prohibit altogether the use of the loud horn.

MOVING PICTURE SHOW

IN FRANKLIN GROVE
Joe Dauntler has the contract to put on a moving picture show on the street in Franklin Grove next Thursday evening. This is to be given free of charge and doubtless a large crowd will witness it. Mr. Dauntler exhibited a moving picture show in that city on the Fourth of July and about 2000 people witnessed it.

GREAT RECEPTION FOR TEDDY.

R. W. Thomson returned from Chicago last evening where he attended the national convention of the progressive party, and as a result of his visit, he is a most enthusiastic Roosevelt follower. He says the demonstration for the ex-president yesterday afternoon was the most spontaneous thing he ever saw.

SHOE POCKET FOR BEDROOM

Convenient Article That Takes Up
Little Space, and May Be Called an Ornament.

In the accompanying sketch may be seen a dainty little shoe pocket for hanging upon the wall at some convenient spot in the bedroom. It is shield shaped, and for the foundation a piece of stiff cardboard should be cut out in the shape shown in the diagram at the top of the sketch, and covered on both sides with some pretty remnant of silk.

Across the lower half a double pocket is arranged, sewn down the center and bound at the edge with narrow ribbon and into which the shoes may be slipped in the manner illustrated.

The pocket is further ornamented with three smart little ribbon bows and edged all round with a cord of fancy pattern. On either side at the top small rings are sewn on by which the pocket may be suspended from nails in the wall.

To a certain extent the colors of the materials selected should depend upon the color of the wall on which the pocket is designed to hang, but pale pink silk and white ribbon and pink and white cord would make a very pretty little article, or pale green silk with pale pink ribbon and a pale green and pink cord would be equally delicate and effective.

COMFORT IN THE BOUDOIR

Up-to-Date Woman Has Every Garment Appropriate to the Hours of Relaxation.

The cult of the artistic negligee has brought with it strongly emphasized attention to all the little niceties of informal attire, and when a woman has bought her dainty negligee robe
she is only fairly started upon her extravagant career.

A woman really cannot wear one of the silky, luxurious gowns over a petticoat not in keeping, and since corsets are dispensed with in hours of relaxation she must have brassieres for wear with the negligee, and, the corset garters being removed, there must be round garters for the negligee tol-lets. Comfortable boudoir shoes, dainty enough to dwell at peace with the dainty robe, are needed, and she must needs wear silk stockings to match such light lined shoes and robe; and every self-respecting negligee toilet cries out for a boudoir cap.

COATEES OF ALL DESIGNS

French Makers Have Released a Bewildering Variety of This Popular Garment.

Soft, shapeless little boleros reaching only to the waist line, coat sharply cut away and fitted in at the waist line, directoire models with high collars around sides and back, mantelets crossing fish-wise in front and either falling to the waist line in the back like a loose cape or belted in with coat tails of some kind below the belt;
short Prussian coats, fastening down
the left front, belted with short coat skirts all around, sleeveless bo-leros, straight loose Louis XV. coats with neck frills, buttons all the way down the straight front, waistcoats and other details belonging to the type—there is apparently no period to which the French makers have not turned for inspiration in the designing of the coatees, and the variety extends to color schemes and details.

Don't sleep facing the light; it will weaken the eyes.

Camphor water is an astringent
good for an oily skin.
Hot lemonade without sugar is excellent for biliousness and bilious headaches.

To harden the gums and sweeten
the breath rinse daily with a little tincture of myrrh.

Ink and other stains may be removed from the hands by a solution of rose water and acetic acid in the proportions of 18 parts rose water to 1 of acetic acid.

Never sleep in a room with closed windows; lower the upper sash an inch and raise the lower sash slightly;
this will give a free circulation of air without creating a draft.

Light hair is brightened by adding a teaspoonful of salts of tartar and the juice of a lemon to the shampoo water. Frequent use of this is not recommended, as it will in time make the hair harsh.

NO NICARAGUAN INTERVENTION

United States Government Only Seeks to Protect American Interests in Southern Country—500 Marines to Be Stationed at Managua.

Juarez, Mex., Aug. 7.—Fifteen hundred federal troops of General Huer-tas' army marching on Juarez encountered an equal number of rebels at Villa Ahumada, 75 miles south of this city, and a desperate battle began.

Villa Ahumada is a ranch on the Mexican Central railroad part of the National system, which is controlled by Orozco all the way to this city. The rebel troops under General Fernandez of Orozco's staff, opposing the federal advance, has been engaged in destroying the railroad north from the city of Chihuahua following the retreat of the insurgents from their capital.

Mexican Battle Rages.

General Fernandez telegraphed Orozco that his men were strongly posted and prepared to offer stubborn resistance. Up to the hour the message was received here the federals had not employed any artillery, the federal attacking force being composed of engineers engaged in rebuilding the railroad and a strong detachment of cavalry. Fernandez telegraphed that he had driven off the federal skirmish line

with the loss of only three killed and 20 wounded in his own ranks. No mention was made of federal casualties except 20 wounded taken prisoners. He said he felt able to hold the position indefinitely, however, it is known the rebels have no artillery outside this city and with General Salazar's troops now retreating hurriedly to Juarez, and should Huerta be able to bring up his field guns the rebels would be forced to retreat.

tertained by state department officials
although it was admitted at the state department that the situation in that

BIBLE HOUR WAS

INSPIRING TO ALL

REV. HOWARD SAYS PSALMS ARE SUPERIOR TO LYRIC POETRY—
MRS. KRUEGER SPOKE.

One of the most interesting bible hours was this morning when Rev.
E. G. Howard took up the study of the Psalms—Some Songs of the Psalter, being the subject.

Rev. Howard declared that Psalms are far superior to any lyric poetry and they were dictated by the Holy Spirit.

He said the Psalms are adapted to every experience of human life, the hour of joy or contrition, and quoted passage after passage to show the application.

Seventy-three of the 150 psalms, he said, are ascribed to David and he said that probably the greatest help in the study of them would be the study of the life of David.

"No other character outside of Christ had such a varied experience as did David."

Mrs. F. W. Krueger, who has sung throughout the bible conference and at the bible hour every morning, is a great favorite with those who attend. Not only her singing, but her appropriate selection of solos adds to the fullness of each service. She has a wonderfully sweet voice and puts her heart into her work.

THE BOYS AND GIRLS
ENTERTAINED CROWDSPHYSICAL CULTURE CLASS EN-TERTAINMENT WAS FEATURE
AT ASSEMBLY LAST EVENING.

The Assemblan stars, consisting of the boys and girls of the physical culture classes, gave an excellent entertainment of drills, games, etc., which has not been surpassed by any in former years, last evening.

Prof. R. A. Allen and Miss A. M.
Wahl, the physical directors having charge of the boys and girls respectively, deserve much credit for the fine training the Stars had received and evidenced in the way in which everything went off.

Miss Wahl's exhibition of Indian club swinging showed that she is an expert in that line. The swinging of the lighted clubs was very pretty.

The serpentine march which opened the evening program was accompanied by the Dixon Marine band.
The hoop drill by the girls was one of the prettiest on the program.

The boys showed that they had learned a great deal from Prof. Allen in their few days' training under him. This they showed in the pyramid building, mat exercises and tumbling and games played for the amusement of the audience.

Miss Katherine Miller played the piano for the exercises.

Band Concert

The Dixon Marine band played an hour's concert on the platform in the auditorium, beginning at 7 o'clock, and was heard by a large crowd.

The crowd last evening was excellent and the auditorium was well filled. This was an unusual mark of interest in the work of the boys and girls.

STEWART NEWS NOTES.

Foster motored to Wisconsin last week.

A daughter was born Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cratty.

NO subject is closer to a woman's heart than properly designed corsets. The manufacturers of Gossard Corsets have spent years and thousands of dollars in bringing them up to their present perfection. You can hardly appreciate what one of these corsets mean to a dress or suit.

MODEL L. (as illustrated) is suitable for a plump figure, with a naturally small waist. Every line of the figure is enhanced by this model. It encases the form without undue suppression, yet prevents the hips from spreading. It is high in the back with bust gores widened sufficiently to prevent the bust from pushing up when the wearer is seated.

ASSEMBLY NOTES

The log cabin is one of the most interesting places on the Assembly grounds and all should be familiar with its contents. The cabin, inside and out, represents the kind of home the people of Abraham Lincoln's boyhood days occupied.

The big fireplace inside with its real old fashioned kettles, that have been actually used in the old cabins, is as nearly as possible an exact duplicate of those of the years prior to the civil war.

The cabin contains, also, an old spinning wheel, which doubtless has made many a garment worn by some boy, now an old man, or some man now in his grave.

On the walls are pictures, certificates, etc. Notably there are two certificates of election to a coroner of this county issued in 1841 and 1842, signed by Thomas Carlin, governor of Illinois at that time.

There is a case of old books, all in their original bindings; a few of the bones taken from the mounds on the grounds are on exhibition; the first piano ever brought to Dixon stands in one corner, the gift of Judge Charters; one of the relics which should be especially noted is the copy of the Ulster County (N. Y.) Gazette, dated January 4, 1800.

These are not all the things on exhibition, but are named as a suggestion of the interesting things that can be seen by any one who cares to go to the cabin on the banks of the river.

George Burch of Galt is here attending the Assembly with his family, who are in camp.

A. A. Krape will leave this evening for Freeport to attend a reception for Rev. and Mrs. Simmons of Rockford, who leave for the west soon. Mrs. Simmons is Mr. Krape's sister.

Editor and Mrs. Ed. F. Guffin of Pawpaw are spending several days at the Assembly.

Samuel Aggraves and Edward Bennett of Compton, who are camping at the Assembly, motored to Grand Detour today.

Dramatic Notes

PRINCESS THEATRE.

The Princess theatre shows this evening Hugh Conway's celebrated novel of Called Back, which has been dramatized by the Thanhauser Co., and will be shown in two reels. It is an extremely interesting story of love and adventure and is presented by a clever company.

By special request the mahage-ment will present Attacked by a Lion the picture which pleased so many last week.

PORTRAYED STRONGLY IN "PUTTING IT OVER," THIRD WEEK AT THE OLYMPIC, CHICAGO.

It is generally conceded that the comradeship between father and son is conducive to family happiness.

The element is brought out particularly strongly in Putting It Over, the Lee Arthur and Frank Hatch comedy, in its third week at the Olympic theatre, Chicago.

Amos Sterling, a financier, who sends his son Ross to college, is broad minded enough to overlook his son's escapades. When the boy gets in to trouble, the father, instead of scolding him, helps him out. Through the entire play father and son are pictured in the light of "good pals."

Consequently, when the young man finds that his father is involved in financial difficulties, he gives up his intended calling of being a lawyer and becomes a professional baseball player, using the salary he earns to make up his father's shortage.

Ross is in love with Ruth Noel, his father's ward, and in his father he finds his greatest aid in winning the girl's hand.

"Putting It Over" teems with laughter and amusing situations. Edwin Holt plays the part of the comrade parent, Harold Vosburgh that of the college student and Miss Helen Holmes that of Ruth Noel. Others members of the cast are Frederick Burt, Royal Tracy, Franklin Ritchie, Francis Joyner, Joseph Woodburn, C. W. Harris, Allison Skipworth and Veda Steele.

POLE BREAKS SHOULDER BLADE

John Donovan, a member of the Illinois Northern Utilities company's pole setting crew, suffered a broken shoulder blade yesterday afternoon, while unloading poles at Nachusa. In some manner, while he was assisting in the work, a heavy pole fell on his right shoulder, fracturing the shoulder blade and breaking it loose from the collar bone. He was brought to Dixon, where his injury was reduced by the company's surgeon.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bennet of Billings, Mont., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dauntler.

Mrs. Betty Heinz, who has been taking treatments at a Peru sanitarium, is reported to be improving greatly.

lived at the door of the hall. "Gentlemen of the convention," said Chairman Beveridge, "the committee you appointed yesterday afternoon is ready to report and the guest of the convention has arrived."

After facing the thousands of enthusiastic auditors in the Coliseum for nearly three hours, Theodore Roosevelt concluded his speech at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon and immediately returned to the Congress hotel. Even in that length of time he had been unable to complete more than two-thirds of his address, although those sections which he did deliver were amplified and much new material was interjected.

It was a characteristic Roosevelt speech. All who know the man know that it is impossible for him to read a manuscript, and his spoken addresses are filled with new material.

Will Not Let Him Stop. Several times he attempted to close and leave his audience to read his printed speech, but each time the crowd insisted that he go on. His own copy was torn to pieces early in the oration as he waved it about in his clenched fist to emphasize the points he was making, and once—just as he was about to close—Oscar King Davis, secretary of the convention, pushed a fresh copy into his hand, which was open at the tariff page, which the colonel laughingly announced he had overlooked.

There were several interruptions of a nature which might have embarrassed another speaker, but Colonel Roosevelt was not in the least annoyed.

Once it was a voice which shouted: "How about the liquor question?" The answer was: "Oh, now, now, go to a primary school."

Answers Question on Negroes.

Again it was "How about the negroes?" and this time came a firm set of the jaw and a reiteration of his former declarations that the negro should have full recognition in the new party when he was competent to have such recognition, as had been granted in the northern states, and not through "dragging" southern whites into electing him.

The expected contest upon this question on the floor of the convention did not materialize. When order had been restored after Colonel Roosevelt had concluded, Chairman Knox of the credentials committee presented the report barring the negroes, and it was adopted unanimously.

The report of the committee on rules which had been previously announced was then read, and accepted in a similar manner.

Will Make Another Speech.

Colonel Roosevelt will make his second entrance to the convention after he has been formally nominated for president. In his second speech he will accept the nomination.

This is the first time in recent years that a presidential nominee on a national party ticket personally has attended a convention at which he was nominated.

In 1896 William Jennings Bryan was a delegate in the Chicago convention in which he was nominated for president.

The next business would have been the permanent organization of the convention, but without proceeding to this the convention took a recess at 3:55 o'clock until 11 o'clock this morning.

Governor Johnson of California still seems the most likely candidate for the vice-presidency because of his fighting ability. Colonel Parker is in an unreciprocative mood, with Judge Lindsey an avowed candidate.

Platform in the Making.

Platform of the national Progressive party still is in the making and probably will not be completed until late. A subcommittee of seven members of the resolutions committee is at work on the mass of planks that have been turned in from many sources and endeavoring to get into a few words the ideas that all members of the committee agree on. When the subcommittee gets a tentative draft of the proposed platform the full committee will meet and it is likely that Colonel Roosevelt will be invited to meet with its members.

Friday's Program.

Friday afternoon Rev. Frank C. Bruner will deliver his famous lecture, "Uncle Billie and Aunt Harriet." In the evening there will be a full concert by the Williams Jubilee Singers.

Blanche Delivers Address.

Several hundred people attended the Recognition day exercises Tuesday afternoon and all were highly entertained. The principal address by Dr. Blanche, platform manager, was an excellent one, filled with thoughts along educational lines that everybody should have heard. Dr. Blanche has great hopes for the future. He insisted that the Round Table feature should be encouraged. "There are so many young people who must work for a living, who have no time for a higher school, that this course, humble as it may seem, is just what they need," said the doctor.

He declared that men of brains have always, do now, and in the future will rule the world, but their work will be more effective if they possess also the consecrated heart.

Ability to do things and character to direct, are essential for man's progress. Education should prepare men for leadership. We follow great leaders, we have high ideals.

Dr. Blanche reviewed in detail the splendid home life of Germany, his native country.

Mrs. Krueger Leads.

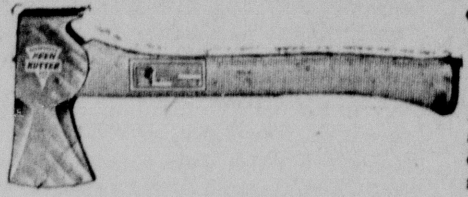

Mrs. F. W. Krueger lead the singing during the exercises and Miss Ruth Altman played the piano. Miss Ruth Miller favored the audience with a saxophone solo, her sister being the piano accompanist.

Rev. Barnett pronounced the invocation.

J. H. Leivan has returned from a three months' visit in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Iowa. He states that the crops in those states are considerably ahead of those here.

CHAPTER XXII.

The End of the Puzzle.

The elder brother tried to push past George, but old Mortimer caught him by the shoulders and dragged him back.

"Let me go!" he cried, his voice nasal and high. "Do you hear me? Let me go!"

"Mr. Mortimer," said George, without turning his head or letting his eye waver, "keep him back. Thanks." George stepped over the threshold. "Now gentlemen, I shall shoot the first man who makes a movement."

And Ryanne, who knew something about George, saw that he meant just what he said. "Steady, every one," he said. "My friend George here can't shoot; but that kind of a man is deadliest with a pistol. I surrender."

The brother was struggling. "The telephone! The telephone! I demand to call the police. This is accessory to the fact! I tell you, let me go!"

"Mr. Wadsworth," replied George, "if you do not be still and let me run this affair, I'll throw the pistols to the floor, and your brother and his friends may do as they bally please. Now, step back and be quiet. Stop!" to Ryanne, whose hand was reaching out toward the table.

"Don't shoot, Percival; I want only a final glass of wine." Ryanne calmly took the slender stem of the glass between his fingers, lifted it and drank. He set it down empty. From his outside pocket he drew a handkerchief and delicately dried his lips. He alone of his confederates had life. It was because he alone understood. Prison wasn't starting him in the face just yet. "Well, Arthur, old top, how goes it? Nearly got your money-bags, didn't we? And we surely would have but for this delicious vintage."

"Damn you and your wine!" roared the Major, shaking with rage. This adventure had been no joke to him, no craving for excitement. He wanted the gold, the gold. With what would have been his share he could have gambled at Monte Carlo and Ostend till the end of his days. For the first time he saw long, black bars of iron running up and down a window. And all for a bottle of wine!

"Damn away, old sport!" Ryanne reached for the bottle and filled his glass again. "Percival, I'm blamed sorry about that olive-tree of yours." He waved his hand toward the bags. "You can see that my intentions in regard to refunding that hundred pounds were strictly honorable. Now, what's on the ticket?"

"I suppose your luggage is outside in the automobiles?"

"Right-O!"

"Well, I need not explain my reasons; you will understand them; but I am going to give you all two hours' time. Then I shall notify the police. You will have to take your chance after that time."

The circling faces brightened perceptibly. Two hours—that would carry them far into Jersey.

"Accepted with thanks," said Ryanne.

"I refuse to permit it!" yelled the brother. "Mr. Jones, you will rue this night's work. I shall see that the law looks into your actions. This is felony. I demand to be allowed to telephone."

"Percival, for heaven's sake, let him!" cried Ryanne wearily. "Let him shout; it will soften his voice. He will hurt nobody. The wires were cut hours ago."

Mortimer felt the tense muscles in his grasp relax. Arthur Wadsworth grew limp and reeled against the jamb of the door.

outer and the first man. "Forward march, front door. Go on!"

"What about me?" asked Ryanne.

"In a moment," George could not but admire the man, rascal though he was. There was a pang of regret in his heart as the thought came and went swiftly: what a comrade this man would have made under different circumstances! Too late! "Halt!" he cried. The trio marching toward the door came to a stop, their heads turned inquiringly. "Here, Mr. Mortimer; take one of these guns and cover the Major. He's the one I doubt." Then George followed the others into the hall and ironically bade them God-speed as he opened the door for them. They went out stupidly; the wine had dulled them. George immediately returned to the library.

Neither Fortune nor her mother had stirred in all this time. A quality of hypnotism held them in bondage. The mother could not lower her glance and the daughter would not. If there was a light of triumph in Fortune's eyes, it was unconsciously there. And no one will know the full bitterness that shone from the mother's. She could have screamed with fury; she could have rent her clothes, torn her skin, pulled her hair; and yet she sat there without physical sign of the tempest.

On her side, Fortune knew, that had there been a single gesture inviting pity, she must have flown to her mother's side. But there was no sign. Finally, Fortune stepped back, chilled. It was all too late.

"Fortune," said George, terribly embarrassed, "do you wish to speak to your mother, alone?"

"No." It was a little word, spoken in a little, hushed tone.

Mrs. Chedsoye rose and proceeded to put on her furs, which she had flung across the back of her chair.

"Mother!" This came in a gasp from the elder Wadsworth. An understanding of this strange proceeding began to filter through his mind. The young girl's mother!

Mrs. Chedsoye drew on her gloves slowly. She offered them to the Major to button. He flung the hands aside. He was not nice under the veneer. But Ryanne was instantly at her service. And curiously she watched his agile fingers at work over the buttons; they were perfectly steady. Then, followed by the Major and Ryanne, she walked easily toward the hall. Ryanne paused.

"Good night, Arthur. I'm sure you will not sleep well. That handsome safe is irreparably damaged. I dare say you will find a way to cover the loss without any injury to your own pocket. Old top, farewell! Who was it, Brutus or Caesar, who said: 'I go but to return?' The banter left his face and voice swiftly. "You sneaking blackguard, you cheater of widows; yes, I shall come again; and then look to your sleek, sanctimonious neck! You chucked me down the road to hell, and the pity of it is, some day I must meet you there! Fortune, child, his voice becoming sad, "you might remember a poor beggar in your prayers to-night. Percival, a farewell to you. We shall never meet again. But when you stand upon that bally old rug there, you'll always see me, the fire, the tents, the camels and the desert, and the moon in the date-palms. By-by!"

And presently they were gone. A moment later those remaining could hear the chug-chug of the motors as they sped away. The banker was first to recover from the spell. He rushed for the hall, but George stopped him rudely.

"Two hours, if you please. I never break my word. Your money is all there. If you do not act reasonably, I'll throw you down and sit on you all the time is up. Sit down. I do not propose that my future wife shall appear in court as a witness against her mother. Do you understand me now?"

The banker signified that he did. He sat down, rather subdued. Then he got up nervously and inventoried the steal. He counted roughly a million. A million! He felt sick and weak. It would have wrecked the bank, wiped it out of existence. And saved by the merest, the most trifling chance! A bottle of wine! He resumed his chair and sat there wondering till the time-limit expired.

The public never heard how nearly the Merchant-Mechanic had gone to the wall; nor how six policemen had worked till dawn carrying back the gold; nor that the banker had not even thanked them for their labor.

The first impulse of the banker had been to send the story forth to the world, to harass and eventually capture his brother; but his foresight becoming normal, he realized that silence was best, even if his brother escaped. If the depositors heard that the bank had been entered and a million taken from the vaults, there would naturally follow a terrific run.

"I Am Going to Give You All Two Hours' Time."

When the last bag had been taken out of the library and the banker and the police had gone, the bell rang. George went to the door. A messenger handed him a small satchel and a note. There was to be no reply. The note was from Ryanne. Briefly it stated that the satchel contained the emeralds. There had been some difficulty in forcing the Major to surrender them. But that much was due to George for his generosity. Later in the day he—George—might inform his—Horace's—brother that the coup hadn't been a total fizzle. They had already packed away in suitcases something like two hundred thousand dollars in bills of all denominations. "Tell that dear brother of mine to charge it to our account. It will be less than the interest upon a million in ten years. To you, my boy, I add: Fortune favors the brave!"

"George," said Mortimer, "you will not mind if I forage round in the kitchen? A bottle of beer and a bit of cheese would go handy. It's almost my breakfast time."

"Bless your heart, help yourself!"

And George turned to Fortune.

"Ah," she cried, seizing his hands, "you will not think ill of me?"

"And for what?" astonished.

"For not speaking to my mother. Or, I just couldn't; I just couldn't!"

When I thought of all the neglect, all the indifference, the loneliness, I couldn't! It was horribly unnatural and cruel!"

"I understand, heart of mine. Say no more about it." And he put his two hands against her cheeks and kissed her. "Never shall you be lonely again, for I am going to be all things to you. Poor heart! Just think that all that has passed has been only a bad dream, and that it's clear sunny morning; eh?" He held her off a ways and then swept her into his arms as he had done on board the ship, roughly and masterly. "And there's that old rug! Talk about magic carpets! There never was one just like this. But for it I shouldn't even have known you. And, by Jove! when the minister comes this afternoon . . ."

"This afternoon!"

"Exactly! When he comes, you and I are going to stand upon that beautiful, friendly old rug, and both of us are going to be whisked right away into Eden."

"Please!"

Silence.

"How brave you are!"

"I? Oh, pshaw!"

"Would you have shot one of them?"

"Girl, your Percival Algernon couldn't have hit the broad side of a barn." He laughed jocosely.

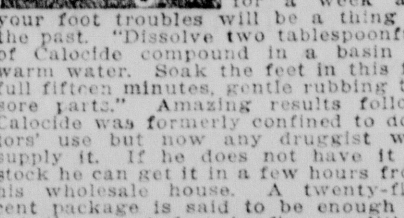

"I knew it. And that is why I call you brave."

And when the pale gold of winter dawn filled the room, it found them, hand in hand, staring down at the old Yhordes, the magic old Yhordes from Bagdad.

THE END.

Wonderful Treatment For Corns Callouses and All Sore Feet

Millions of people who endure daily torture from sore feet will welcome the information that there is now a simple treatment that positively and quickly cures foot ailments of all kinds. You can say goodbye to corns and callouses, bunions, swollen, aching, bad smelling and sweaty feet. This treatment works right through the pores and removes the cause of the trouble. Use it once and your feet feel delightful; use it for a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. "Dissolve two tablespoons of Calceide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." Amazing results follow. Calceide was formerly confined to doctors' use but now any druggist will supply it. If he does not have it in stock he can get it in a few hours from his wholesale house. A twenty-five cent package is said to be enough to put the worst feet in fine condition.

Too Talkative.
It was a beautiful evening, and Ole, who had screwed up courage to take Mary for a ride, was carried away by the magic of the night.
"Mary," he asked, "will you marry me?"
"Yes, Ole," she answered softly.
Ole lapsed into a silence that at last became painful to his fiancée.
"Ole," she said, desperately, "why don't you say something?"
"Ay tank," Ole replied, "they bane too much said already."—Success.

How She Felt About It.
Hubby (who has just received the bill)—You look awfully jolly in that dress, Nelly, but it cost a frightful lot of money.
Wife—Yes, dear, I know it did, but I don't care about money when it's a question of pleasing you.—Illustrated Bits.

What Makes the Valet.
"It's so ridiculous," said Cholly Saphead, "to say that 'clothes don't make the man.'"
"Indeed?" said Mrs. Peppery.
"Yaas. You see, if a fellow like me didn't have such lots of clothes he wouldn't be a man." — Catholic Standard and Times.

The Truth.
"Jaggs told a story about being held up the other night on his way home. Do you think there was any truth in it?"
"Certainly there was. I saw the whole thing myself, and his friends on the job had their hands full holding him up, too."

Going a Distance.
"His doctor recommended warm baths."
"So?"
"Yes; and he's going to Europe to take them."
"He was always that way. Even as a boy he would put off taking baths as long as possible."

WAY AROUND.

Jess—Did he tell you that he loved you?
Tess—No; but he hugged me.
Jess—That's a roundabout way of letting you know it.

A Hot Day Tragedy.
The little boy who clasps a cent. Stands sadly at the street alone. And wonders where that fellow went Who sells the cooling ice cream cone.

One Form of It.
"I thought you said Mrs. Gribbet didn't gamble?"
"She doesn't gamble. The idea of such a thing!"
"Umph! She's been married three times."

Objected to the Odor.
Bacon—I see that garlic came from Asia and has been used since the earliest times. It formed part of the diet of the Israelites in Egypt.
Egbert—Do you suppose that accounts for their being driven out of Egypt?

Handing Him One.
Pedestrian—Hey, you! Do you know you dropped a brick that almost hit me on the head?
Workman—All right. Yes, kin have 'em. Ol've got lots more av 'em.
—Judge.

Astonished Him, Too.
"James, I wonder how you can sit there and look me in the face!"
"So do I, my dear, but it's surprising what a really bold, brave, restless, bad man can do."—P. I. P.

A Foxy Scheme.
"My wife is trying to get all the other suffragettes to come out in 30 cent hats."
"What's her idea?"
"Then she'll appear in a fifty dollar confection."

MODIFYING THE PANIER

MANY VERSIONS OF THE LATEST STYLE TO BE SEEN.

Parisian Idea Has Not Been Received With Full Favor in the United States, Though the Suggestion Is Followed.

Versions of the panier are getting more numerous every day, but with few exceptions women seem a little shy of using the fulness at the hips, where, indeed, it is only becoming to the slimmest and most youthful figures. Occasionally one finds a shop gown which is definitely of the picturesque sort, with genuine hip bunches and a flavor of Watteau in all the touches of the creation; but such charming frivolities, which are copied faithfully by the private makers for ultra-smart wearers, are kept entirely for out-of-town use, as they should be. The panier drapery of the most popular sort carries out the idea with a very low puffing, this fulness being always below the knees and offering no obstacle to long, graceful lines.

A tunic of this sort is shown with the gown, and if one wants to have a little fling with the panier idea here is the chance for it. The puffing of the tunic is of the most conservative species, and the style gives very smart opportunity for the use of two fabrics. With the panier gowns a figured material is often put under plain, the pattern showing through the goods, or else the scheme is reversed, with the dress of the plain and the tunic of the figured. Here the dress is of a figured voile in a pale shade of gray, lace in the same color trimming it effectively. The model is adapted to lingerie materials of soft fail, to muslin, swiss, soft-finished linen, etc.

WILL KEEP GOWN IN SHAPE

Inexpensive and Satisfactory Frame That Any One May Put Together at Home.

Cut a piece of heavy cardboard 17 inches long and eight inches wide and shape one side of it like a coat hanger. Now punch a small hole in the center one inch from the top, and tie a piece of ribbon or tape through it to make a loop to hang it on.

In the lower edge make two holes six inches apart and either insert large safety pins or sew in hooks to hang the skirt or your gowns to.

This makes an inexpensive and very satisfactory frame to hang your summer lingerie or linen frocks and waists upon, keeping them fresh for a long time after they have been ironed.

These hangers may be padded with raw cotton and covered with fancy silk or flowered silkoline. A delicate sachet powder sprinkled over the cotton adds greatly to their attractiveness and perfumes the gown as well.

New Ruffles.

Many new ruffles have appeared this spring. Foremost as a novelty is a soft taffeta in shot colorings, edged all around with a broad frayed-out ruche of the silk, and another has a taffeta center and a soft marabout edging.

The neck ruche—or ruffle—now goes quite closely around, and is charming in ostrich feathers, just slightly curled, and the most amenable colors are black and white, ivory or gray—the latter mixed with white or in some pale self tone.

A neck ruffle of ostrich feathers with triple ends finished with tassels is effective when thrown over the shoulders, and the broad scarfs of marabout mounted on soft satin are not only becoming but of real utility.

Genuine Maple Sugar Scarc. There are few people outside the maple sugar making districts, says a writer in the Country Gentleman, who really know what the genuine article tastes like. The superior flavor thus spoken of is probably due in a degree to the same causes that make strawberries eaten off the vine and cherries consumed on the tree so delectable. The writer quoted, however, puts some of the blame for the poor flavor of commercial maple sugar on the "wily wholesale dealer and mixer."

DECIDE YOURSELF

THE OPPORTUNITY IS HERE, BACKED BY TESTIMONY

Don't take our word for it. Don't depend on a stranger's statement.

Read Dixon endorsement. Read the statements of Dixon citizens.

And decide for yourself. Here is one case of it:

E. B. Fisher, barber 116 Hennepin Ave., Dixon, Ill., says: "All I said about Doan's Kidney Pills in 1909 when I publicly recommended them I am glad to confirm at this time. I know that they are just as represented. I had rheumatic pains through my back and limbs and when I stood in one position for any length of time it was hard for me to move. My kidneys acted irregularly and contained sediment. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a supply at Leake Bros.' Drug store, and they did me so much good that I continued taking them. They made me strong and well. I still used this remedy once in awhile and it keeps my kidneys in good working order."

For Sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Charles II, the Merry Monarch

"Here lies our sovereign lord, the King. Whose word no man relies on; He never says a foolish thing. A Nor ever does a wise one."

THIS scurrilous was found scrawled one morning on the bedroom door of his majesty, King Charles II. of England. The king read the rhyme, smiled carelessly at the horrified courtiers and passed on. Another man might have taken offense at being thus lampooned. But Charles had two remarkable traits that saved him much bother: He never carried a grudge and he never felt gratitude.

He knew well enough that this particular doggerel was the work of the graceless earl of Rochester, the man who in another poem alluded to Charles as "A merry monarch, scandalous and poor." Yet he did not trouble himself to punish or even to snub the earl. Nor would he have rewarded Rochester for saving the whole royal family from death. That was the sort of man the "Merry Monarch" was.

When Charles II. was a mere boy his father, Charles I., had been overthrown and beheaded by England's "Parliamentary Party." The young fellow had not stayed in England to fight to the death in his father's cause. Instead he had slipped over to Holland, where he was living in jolly security. But on hearing of the king's execution he promptly proclaimed himself "King Charles II." The proclamation did him little good. For the parliamentary party (with Oliver Cromwell at its head) had for the time made England an impossible place for kings.

Still, the Scotch, ever restless (and probably forgetting they had betrayed and sold his fugitive father to the English), offered to make Charles their king if he would give them certain promises. These promises seemed to him disgraceful. Yet a promise was one thing that Charles was always willing to give, knowing he could readily break his word later.

He went to Scotland and in 1651 was crowned. Then he invaded England. Cromwell quickly routed him out of both England and Scotland and sent him scuttling to France for safety.

But when Cromwell died, England grew tired of Puritanism and the parliament's rule and the people gladly welcomed Charles home as their king. It was the beginning of modern England, and of a reign whose profligacy and scandals set the whole world agog. Charles embarked at once on a life of pleasure. He turned a deaf ear to the pleas of those who had begged themselves in behalf of his father and himself. He said he had no money to spend on such people. But he squandered fortunes at the gambling table and in heaping wealth and rank upon such women as he chanced to fancy.

He neglected and ill-treated his homely little wife, broke state pledges at will, lavished money on low favorites and mismanaged the nation. Rochester in calling him "a merry monarch, scandalous and poor," had but spoken the truth. He was merry—at the country's expense. His life was one long scandal. He was forever poor, because he was a spendthrift.

Charles's chief advisers were five noblemen (Chifford, Ashley, Buckingham, Arlington and Lauderdale), who aided him to defy parliament and cheat the people. The first letters of these men's names in order spelled "Cabal," and the oddly coined word has ever since been used to describe any conspiracy against the state. To get money for his own purposes Charles sold two English towns to France. He also accepted a large yearly sum of money from the French king (Louis XIV.) to act in that monarch's interests. All this did not add to his popularity with his own people, who hated France.

In 1663 war broke out between England and Holland. A Dutch fleet invaded England, sailed up the Medway river as far as Chatham, destroying everything in its path. London in 1665 was swept by the plague and in 1666 by fire. Plots, religious disturbances, national discontent—all sorts of misfortunes piled up. Through it all the Merry Monarch pursued his calm, blackguardly way; seriously disturbed by nothing; enriching vice and allowing virtue to starve; his life and his court the scandal of the civilized world. He would probably have been assassinated were it not that his brother James—duke of York, the most unpopular man in England—would have succeeded him as king. For Charles and the queen had no children.

In February, 1685, Charles II. died. To the last he was the Merry Monarch, whimsically begging his courtiers' pardon "for being such a long time in dying." Courage, wit and jolly nature were his only good qualities. There were perhaps still fewer bad ones he did not possess.

DURBIN FOR GOVERNOR

INDIANA REPUBLICANS RENOMINATE FORMER EXECUTIVE.

Platform Declares for Local County Option, Woman Suffrage and Primary Election Reform.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7.—Col. Winfield T. Durbin of Anderson, former governor, was nominated for governor by the Republican state convention. The other candidates were Mayor Shank of Indianapolis, John C. Chaney of Sullivan and Charles A. Carlisle of South Bend. Only one ballot was required. Durbin had 711 votes, or nine less than a majority, but many counties were changing to him and the other candidates moved to make it unanimous. Other nominations were made as follows: Lieutenant governor, Thomas T. Moore of Greencastle; secretary of state, Fred I. King of Wabash; auditor of state, I. Newton Brown of Franklin; treasurer of state, Job Freeman of Terre Haute; attorney general, F. H. Wurzer of South Bend; state statistician, J. L. Peetz of Indianapolis; superintendent of public instruction, Samuel C. Ferrell of Fort Wayne; reporter of the supreme court, Warwick H. Ripley of Indianapolis; supreme judge, First district, Woodwin D. Robinson of Evansville; for the Fourth district, Leander J. Monks of Winchester; appellate court judge, First district, David A. Myers of Greensburg.

The platform declares in favor of county local option, woman suffrage, workman's compensation, public utilities, commission law, primary election reform and a number of other progressive propositions. An effort to strike out the county local option plank was defeated by a vote of 1,004 to 429. James E. Watson of Rushville was the temporary chairman and made the keynote speech. Judge Walter Olds of Fort Wayne was the permanent chairman.

There was a large attendance and the crowd was enthusiastic.

TWO RESCUED FROM DEATH

Occupants of Automobile Are Dragged From Car By Switchmen Just as Train Pushes It Over 50 Foot Trestle.

Springfield, Aug. 7.—Charles McDaniel of Virginia, Ill., and Henry Funk of Arenzville were miraculously rescued from threatened death when Funk's automobile was run down by a backing string of cars on the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis railroad in this city. Three switchmen, riding on a flat car at the rear of the train, saw the car strike the automobile, and reaching over dragged the imperiled men upon the flat car just as the automobile fell over a 50-foot trestle upon which it had been pushed. McDaniel suffered a fracture of one ankle and Funk's left leg was slightly crushed as they were lifted upon the flat car.

The switchmen who dragged McDaniel and Funk to safety were C. Reed, Fred Welsh and I. Thompson. The automobile caught fire when it fell from the trestle and was completely destroyed.

Takes Poison When Caught.

Danville, Aug. 7.—Rhoda Schooler, sixteen, and Lulu Dillon, seventeen years old, who escaped from the girls' reform school at Clermont, Ind., last week, were arrested in a disorderly house here, and will be turned over to an officer of the institution. Both girls, who had only a few months to serve, declared they would commit suicide if taken back. After the girls had been brought to police headquarters the Schooler girl obtained poison, how or where, is as yet unknown, and swallowed it. Her condition is serious.

Bloomington, Aug. 7.—Hannes Lawson, deputy fish warden, has been actively engaged the past month in rescuing fish stranded by the receding waters in the sloughs along the Pecatonica river. These sloughs were filled when the water was high several months ago, but with the evaporation and other causes the water is disappearing, leaving the fish to die unless removed to the stream below. Deputy Lawson has saved many thousand bass, pike and pickerel, and will keep up the work until all are rescued.

Women to Shoot at Danville Tourney.

Danville, Aug. 7.—The seventh annual tournament of the Danville Rod and Gun club will take place on August 21 and 22. One hundred marksmen, including a number of professionals, will compete. A feature will be a contest for women only. There are quite a number of clever markswomen among them and it is expected many will compete. Mrs. Leslie Shook of Danville won the club medal for shooting at the tournament held on July 14, being the first woman to attain this distinction.

Will Fill Vacancies.

Springfield, Aug. 7.—A call was sent out by Secretary Doyle of the Republican state central committee for a meeting of the full committee to be held at Springfield, Saturday, August 17, to fill vacancies caused by the recent resignation of presidential electors, perfect the committee organization, and lay plans for the coming campaign.

Miners to Discuss Shortage.

Herrin, Aug. 7.—Delegates from over all the coal belt departed for Harrisburg to attend the special convention of the seventh subdistrict of the miners' union, called to take action on the $9,000 shortage of Secretary George F. Wilson, whose whereabouts is not known. The convention will decide how a new secretary is to be selected.

Kicks Door, Shot by Wife.

Mount Vernon, Aug. 7.—Mrs. George Bullock shot and seriously wounded her husband as he attempted to enter her home. Bullock has been separated from his wife for some time, and was trying to make up. Because she refused to let him in he attempted to kick down the door.

Gallatin County Teachers Meet.

Ridgeway, Aug. 7.—The annual session of the Gallatin County Teachers institute convened. W. B. Davis of Carbondale and Mrs. Ella Price of Bloomington are instructors. County Superintendent Boswell is in charge.

Steak Kills Farmer.

Dixon, Aug. 7.—Taking a choking fit while eating beefsteak in a restaurant at Paw Paw, Henry Hamburger, a prominent farmer of that city, died in a few moments. The waiter had just added him his check.

Wabash Wreck Victim Dies.

Bloomington, Aug. 7.—Dr. George M. Rue, a pioneer physician of Lexington, is dead here from the effect of injuries received in a wreck on the Wabash railroad, near Quincy, Ill.

Mrs. John V. Farwell Is Dead.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Mrs. Ellen Sheldon Drummond Farwell, wife of John V. Farwell, president of the John V. Farwell company, died at her home in Lake Forest of heart disease.

Of 80 acres of improved corn belt land, Tuesday, Aug. 13, 1912, at 2 p. m. on the premises.

Location—Could not be better as this farm joins Eldena, Ill., on the I. C. R. R. Only quarter of a mile from elevator, 6 miles from Dixon, county seat of Lee county.

Improvements—Consist of a good 9 room house with basement, two porches, closets and pantry, barn for 8 horses, good well and windmill. Corn crib, granaries and other necessary outbuildings. Good orchard. Farm is tiled, fenced and cross fenced. This farm is a deep black soil; no waste land. We speak in the positive degree only when we say that this good house, beautiful shade, location and immediate surroundings make it a presentable home.

Would not be for sale if owner's health did not require his changing climate.

Terms: $1,000 cash on sale day, balance with possession March 1st, 1913. Sale made subject to mortgage for $4,000 due March 1st, 1914. Can run or be paid. Discount will be given if purchaser wishes to pay all cash sale day. Abstract furnished to date and warranty deed given.
